

Vermin

Landfills attract disease carrying rodents, such as mice, rats and foxes.

Scavenging birds such as crows and seagulls also flock to garbage dumps by the hundreds. The increase in these vermin can cause risk for the local community and other wildlife populations. Also, landfills can be potentially harmful for local wildlife by contaminating food sources and habitat.

Your pets will be at risk as well.

At 400+ acres, I can only imagine how many unwanted creatures will be invading Carlsbad Springs, Vars, Edwards...
